Introduction

In the wake of Global Covid devastation, various efforts are underway to stabilize, strengthen, and diversify the Malaysian economy while offering numerous incentives to heighten the application of high-technology.

Focus Area

This webinar covers the more popular areas of business interest and is presented on a practical basis, including the following:

Selected Strategic Activities and High-tech Products:

1. Small/Medium Scale Enterprises

This sector includes a wide range of activities like manufacturing and related processing, iron and steel products, chemicals and pharmaceuticals, textiles, agriculture, apiculture, and electrical/electronic components. SMEs are also eligible for Pioneer Status and Investment Tax Allowance.

2. MSC Malaysia

For businesses located in Cybercity/Cybercentre and even outside, tax benefits are granted to those related to information technology systems and innovation.

3. Aerospace Industry

Activities include design, construction, and maintenance of related products such as aircraft, communication and navigation systems, and MRO support groups

4. Automotive Industry

Manufacture of value-added parts and components like transmission, brake, and steering systems, and hybrid or electric vehicles

5. Manufacturing Sector

Promoted activities would comprise processing agricultural produce, manufacture of pharmaceuticals, petrochemicals, machinery, and electronic products.

6. Food Production

This covers the processing and canning of meat, and the manufacture of cereals, milk, biscuits, and noodles. Other principal activities include fresh and canned fruit juices, and aquaculture products. Halal food processing can also enjoy special incentives.

Also included are the following guides:

- Determination of qualifying activities and incentives available
- Comparative study of Pioneer Status, Reinvestment Allowance, and Investment Tax Allowance
- Incentives for Research and Development
- Examples and Computations with Case Studies
- Making Incentive Applications to MIDA

Core Webinar Objectives:

- Knowing the various industry-incentives available
- Understanding the relevant methods of computation
